

Good afternoon,

I am compliance officer for three separate companies that operate four separate hotels that have Gaming Machines.

Why should we have to pay the government a levy to provide a service in helping to protect our country, when we do everything we can under the Austrac legislation to make sure there is no illegal activity taking place in our establishments.

It is another cost for us as small employers to pay, when we are already paying a staff member to make sure all our legal requirements are met.

There are services that Governments should provide that shouldn't have a "cost recovery" agenda.

Regards,

Mark Pearse
